

The Top 6 Reasons Why Scott Rose Is The Perfect Television Host

(Hint:  Apple Computer already knows)

Out of all the professional hosts in the nation, only one of them has been chosen by Apple Computer to represent them at all of their events worldwide. And that host is Scott Rose. Why has Apple Computer placed their complete trust in Scott Rose for the last 6 years? And more importantly, how will those traits make Scott Rose the ideal host for reality shows, game shows, and talk shows?

1 Scott Can Go From Zero To Expert In No Time. Due to Apple Computer's infamous secrecy, Scott Rose is given less than 24 hours to memorize & prepare 30-minute speeches on brand new products that NOBODY, including him, has ever seen before. Then, Scott must stand up in front of 100,000 people and appear as if he is a true expert on the product, plus be able to intelligently answer questions from the audience. This ability to gather an incredible amount of new information quickly, plus come across as an expert on that information, is one of Scott's best talents. It requires Scott to combine his skills of public speaking, acting, improvisation, and computer expertise for Apple's mission critical presentations. You can watch a 2-minute clip of Scott doing these astounding speeches for Apple Computer at www.scottrose.tv.

2 Scott Rose Stands Out. Have you ever met someone who lights up a room as soon as they walk into it? Someone who makes a lasting impression on you long after they've left? Scott Rose is one of those people, prompting the producers of the HBO film "High Voltage" to expand an entire character specifically for him—from one line to 20 full pages—based on his outstanding audition. You can read the full news article about this amazing turn of events at www.scottrose.tv. Scott Rose stands out amongst his peers as a trail-blazer and a risk-taker.

3 Scott Is Able To Think On His Feet. An alumni of Improv Olympic's renowned improvisation training center, Scott's top trait is the ability to deliver outstanding performances without planning or preparation. These finely-crafted instincts can do everything from creating an awesome interview to saving the day when something goes wrong on live TV. Better yet, Scott has been able to cash in on his extraordinary ability to think quickly by becoming the grand champion on 4 different game shows, accumulating over $50,000 in cash & prizes. (Video clips available at www.scottrose.tv.) You too can cash in on Scott's instincts when he hosts television shows!

4 Scott is Constantly Performing & Training. Scott Rose improves his skills on a daily basis by continuously training & performing in a wide variety of venues. Currently, Scott performs with 3 different improv comedy teams at Improv Olympic in Hollywood, where you can catch him performing in live shows several times per week. For his current performance schedule, simply visit his website at www.scottrose.tv. Scott is also working on his one-man show, a sneak preview of which you can catch in April 2004 at Improv Olympic.

5 Scott Has Limitless Enthusiasm. The one intangible, untrainable, indispensable quality that is a must for every professional performer is enthusiasm. Scott Rose's genuine passion comes across vividly on camera, and it fills viewers with a sense of energy, excitement, and well-being.

6 Scott Rose looks like Clay Aiken from American Idol. Although at first glance this may seem like a silly thing, this is actually a gigantic boon to Scott's future success. Studies have shown that people who resemble well-loved celebrities are more likely to have a prosperous outcome on everything they do in life, because other people transfer their positive feelings for the celebrity onto the person who resembles the celebrity. You can watch a 3-minute news clip of this phenomenon as the general public falls head-over-heels for Scott Rose (because they believe that he is Clay Aiken) at www.scottrose.tv.
